PURPOSE OF THE COURSE:

The course provides future managers with a clear conceptual understanding of:

- The influence of firm resources and capabilities on international expansion strategies and foreign location choices.
- The persistence of cross-national differences and the effect of these differences on firm strategies, structures, and performance.
- Models for organizing and managing a multinational network of subsidiaries, including how to coordinate and to transfer knowledge across borders.
- The sequence and modes of international expansion, depending on the characteristics of the industry, the firm, and the host country.
- The emergence of new multinationals.

The Wharton School is the world's preeminent center for international management research and education. The course intends to demonstrate that decisions affecting the international expansion of the firm are neither obvious nor totally determined by the technological or economic forces generally associated with globalization. Detailed case studies are used to illustrate that the internationalization of the firm is a sequential decision-making process operating at the country, industry, corporate, business, and subsidiary levels of analysis. Firms manage knowledge accumulation and transfer as they grow international through a mixture of planning and trial-and-error. Students will experience in the classroom the most transcendental decisions that multinational firms face in the course of conducting business across borders. The course is unique in that it presents and explains the unexpected ways in which international competition unfolds over time and across countries.

COURSE TAKEAWAYS

- A set of conceptual tools to navigate through the often contradictory and ambiguous mass of information about how international competition takes place.
- An appreciation of the differences between multidomestic and global industries.
- A set of criteria for evaluating exactly which global strategy will help enhance the firm's long-term profitability and value.

- A clear understanding of how to measure and interpret the effects of economic, financial, political, and social factors on international management decisions.

REQUIREMENTS

- Class participation (25%).
- In-class midterm exam (15%), April 04, 15 minutes.
- Take-home final exam (60%). The exam will be made available on Monday, May 2nd at 9 am and answers will be due on Tuesday, May 3rd by 4 pm.

A Note on Class Participation

Class participation includes three components: (a) class attendance; (b) frequency of class participation and (c) quality of class participation.

I expect students to prepare for class, to attend class (and be on time) and to be willing and ready to participate in each and every class. Students are expected to attend all classes. Please inform me by email (luizm@wharton.upenn.edu) if you are going to miss a class.

High quality class is accomplished by focused comments or questions that demonstrate mastery of readings and cases and develop insights that are not immediately discernible from these materials. I especially encourage class participation that applies conceptual frameworks to case materials and that enriches the learning experience of the class.

CONCERT RULES

We enforce concert rules across all sections of MGMT655 and request that no laptops should be open during class. Please remember to turn off your cell phones before the start of class. Please bring your name tent to each class. Thanks so much.

READING MATERIALS

- All readings are available from Study.Net.

ABOUT THE INSTRUCTOR

L. Felipe Monteiro is an Assistant Professor of Management at the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania. He obtained his Ph.D. in Strategic and International Management at the London Business School. He also has a LL.B. (JD equivalent) degree, cum laude, from the Federal University of Rio de Janeiro, a M.Sc. in Business Administration from COPPEAD/UFRJ, Brazil and a MRes in Business Studies from London Business School.

Before joining The Wharton School, Professor Monteiro was a Fellow, and an award-winning teacher, at the London School of Economics and Political Science (LSE). Prior to that, he was a Senior Researcher at the Harvard Business School's Latin American Research Center where he published several case studies on multinational corporations headquartered in Latin America. Monteiro was also an Adjunct Professor at IBMEC Business School in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, where he won seven teaching awards between 1998 and 2002. Prior to joining academia, Professor Monteiro was a Senior Analyst at Banco do Brasil acting as an advisor to foreign companies investing in Brazil.

His research focuses on knowledge processes within multinational corporations (MNCs), in particular, on how MNCs access external knowledge across organizational, technological and geographic boundaries. Professor Monteiro is also leading a research project on foreign direct investment strategies of MNCs headquartered in the BRIC (Brazil, Russia, India and China) countries. His research has been published in top academic and managerial journals and nominated to prestigious awards at the Academy of International Business and at the Academy of Management. He is an active member of the Academy of International Business, of the Strategic Management Society and of the Academy of Management. In 2010, Professor Monteiro was invited to join Samsung Advanced Institute of Technology's CORE Global Expert network, a small group of leading academics advising Samsung in the area of global innovation management.

At The Wharton School, Professor Monteiro teaches courses on Global Strategic Management to undergraduate and MBA students. He has recently co-designed and co-taught (with Prof. Mauro Guillen) a new modular course on "Managing in Emerging Markets: Energy and Infra-structure in Brazil". Both in 2009 and 2010, Professor Monteiro received the "Goes Above and Beyond the Call of Duty" Teaching Award for his outstanding contributions and commitment to educational excellence in the MBA core curriculum.
